VOCATIONS CORNER

"Previews are the Best Part!"
by Deacon Garrett Braun

Growing up, my Mom would rush us out the door any time we went to see a movie as a family. She'd say, "We've got to get there early...the previews are the best part!" I think there's some truth to that. Movie producers and directors (whoever puts those movie previews together) have gotten so good at completely captivating us for just a few short minutes. They draw us in with the most exciting, interesting and intriguing parts of the movie they're hoping to promote. By the time we get to the feature film, it can feel like a letdown! A two hour movie takes time, effort and investment—to distinguish the characters, enter into the plot, to not miss any details—this is work, especially as compared to the easily digestible movie trailers we've just finished watching.

At times, we're blessed with great clarity and conviction in our faith—for myself that can happen coming off of a powerful retreat where I encountered the Lord in a particular way—the "retreat high." You may have encountered something similar with Cursillo, TEC or Source & Summit. Similarly, you may have encountered the Lord in a particular way at the time of your marriage, or at the baptism of a son or daughter. The Lord may have been especially present to you even in a difficult time—maybe even the funeral of a close family member where you experienced a tremendous outpouring of love, support and prayer, and you knew that the Lord was completely with you at that time. These are blessed moments, and we should be so thankful for them.

At the same time, these moments are like the "preview" of our faith journey with the Lord. They wear off, they often don't seem to last nearly as long as we would like. And yet, the Lord calls us to invest ourselves totally in the work and prayer of drawing into a deeper relationship with him. This is the much longer yet much more rewarding feature length story of our walk with Christ. It takes time spent in prayer, scripture, adoration or volunteering at a food pantry. These are blessed moments, yet ones that often feel dry when compared to those "retreat high" moments. That is also why they can be even more fruitful in our faith journeys—especially as we seek to unite ourselves to the perfect and selfless love of Christ.
